

ALEXANDRA HAYES

Alex created these two ink on rice paper drawings in 2005 while studying in Shanghai. The photographs show her grandfather, the sculptor David Hayes, working at his Coventry studio.

She has extensive direct experience in the visual arts. With her uncle John and father David, she helped organize her grandfather's current city-wide sculpture exhibition in White Plains. Other experience includes work at Philadelphia's Barnes Foundation, a gallery and Freeman's Auctioneers, additional work at the Vero Beach Museum of Art and an internship at the groundbreaking Damien B Gallery in Miami. She has also worked for three firms in Paris.

She is a graduate of Hartwick College and has traveled widely in Europe, China, and across America. She is fluent in French, Spanish and English with familiarity in Italian and Mandarin.
